Winemakers' Perspective

The Mauritsen Dry Creek Valley Sauvignon Blanc embodies our core philosophy that great wine is made in the vineyard! With minimal oak influence and no malolactic conversion, it's truly one of the purest expressions of Sauvignon Blanc you will find in California.

Our 2025 vintage is sourced entirely from Hardie Ranch. Planted more than three decades ago, the vineyard sits in the northern reaches of the valley along the banks of Dry Creek, where deep, gravelly soils promote excellent drainage and deep root penetration. Multiple harvest passes allowed us to build a range of blending components, each capturing distinct aromatic and flavor profiles. Fermentation and élevage in both stainless steel and wood, along with the use of large- and small-format vessels, were deliberate choices aimed at achieving maximum depth, texture, and complexity.

The growing season of 2025 closely mirrored 2023, defined by a cool summer and an extended, even ripening period free of heat spikes. One key distinction, however, is that 2025 saw slightly warmer conditions during ripening, creating a beautiful tension between vibrant freshness and fully developed fruit expression. As the first of the 2025 releases, this Sauvignon Blanc captures that balance perfectly. Aromas of young guava and papaya flesh are lifted by zest of Key lime, delicate hints of mock orange blossom, and a stony mineral edge. The entry is bright, energetic, and inviting, leading to a palate where cleansing citrus provides focus, while a touch of fresh white pineapple adds roundness and a refreshing lift to the finish.
