The year started with mild temperatures and rain. In January, the Filomena storm left the vineyards covered in snow for several days. Spring was warm and dry. At the end of August, after almost two months without rain, episodes of occasional storms cooled the vines during the last days of ripening. With a situation of calm weather and no rain, the harvest took place on September 13.

Of impeccable maturity, its seductive fragrance of red fruits and a full and powerful mouthfeel stand out, with well-defined tannins and pronounced freshness. Grand vintage.
